There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure by local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars' reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON REPORT OF APPRAISERS IN STREET IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 31 OF THE CITY OF ARDMORE, OKLA. HOMA.

All persons interested will take notice that in pursuance of a resolution heretofore passed on the 22nd day of August, 1918, by the Board of Commissioners of the City of Ardmore, a session of the Mayor and Commissioners of the City of Ardmore will be held at the Session Chamber of said City, convening at 8 o'clock P. M. on the 3rd day of September, 1918, for the purpose of hearing objections and exceptions to the appraisal and apportionment of the costs of Street Improvements made by the Board of Appraisers appointed by the Mayor and Commissioners for that purpose, apportioning the costs of Street Improvements to the lots and tracts of land subject to assessment to pay the cost of improving the streets in Street Improvement District No. 31 of the City of Ardmore, consisting of streets and parts of streets thereof, to-wit:

THIRD AVENUE, SOUTH WEST, FROM THE EAST LINE OF "L" STREET TO THE EAST LINE OF "H" STREET, SOUTHWEST, INCLUDING ALLEY CROSSINGS AND STREE INTERSECTIONS THEREON, IN THE CITY OF ARDMORE, OKLAHOMA.

At said session the Mayor and Commissioners will hear any objections or exceptions that may be filed and will revise and correct said report of appraisers and will adopt and approve the same as so revised by them, and said apportionment as so revised and confirmed will be the basis of assessment for Street Improvements in said District.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto affixed my signature and official seal this 23rd day of August, 1918.

G. W. CROOK, City Clerk.

(Seal) (Published August 23, 24, 26, 27, 28, 1918.)

NOTICE.

On Tuesday, August, 1918, at ten o'clock, a. m., one Ford truck, with Smith Form-a-Truck attachment, will be sold to the highest bidder under chattel mortgage foreclosure sale, at the west entrance to the court house. 25-2

When Big Fleet Lands Still Another U.S. Army

American Port in Western France, July 28.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—An American Armada of 13 great transports bringing 36,000 fighting men to France had come quietly into port during the night and the landing of this little army was soon to begin.

Going on board the transport The Associated Press correspondent had an opportunity to see the equipment for this huge undertaking, and how the men had lived and fared on their trip across. It was a long climb up the rope ladder to the deck of a former Ward liner rebuilt as a transport. Soldiers packed the decks and were thick in every cabin, hatch and between decks down to the very bowels of the ship. The spacious promenade deck had disappeared, and in its place were long lines of "standees," or metal hammocks, for the men to sleep in the open on deck as well as between decks.

The men looked well, and the report from the sick bay showed only six cases of sickness out of 3,000 men aboard, a very good showing, said the doctor. In the mess hall a relief of men were taking their breakfast. There was no sitting down at table. The men stood at high troughs, very clean and practical, each man with his own tin plate, knife, fork and spoon, tossing off with relish the hot coffee and good white bread and butter. We tasted this bread and found it a revelation—real bread, so different from the potato bread we are used to as war diet. And real butter, a luxury for soldiers only, which no one begrudged them.

Tiny Blue Lights. Between the decks tiny blue lights were burning to let the men see their way about with some degree of freedom. These are the only lights aboard, no lights on deck of any kind to avoid danger of fire. At night the men felt their way about.

The living quarters between decks were scrupulously clean, and even after ten days of this crowded life afloat there was not a trace of odor, the floors were scrubbed and there was no litter about. It would have cheered the heart of an exacting housekeeper.

"The Admiral says it is the cleanest transport afloat," said the naval officer with as much pride in the record as one in marksmanship.

In the wash rooms, the men were at long porcelain wash troughs. Everything showed the epic and epan neatness of the efficient naval management. In the kitchen galley savory dishes were being prepared, and in the bread-making plant the long line of ovens were turning out stacks of white bread for these 3,000 hearty eaters. This was a meatless day, for civilians, but one of the negro cooks offered us a taste of the steaming meat surry, which would have done credit to a Paris chef.

An exciting event of the trip was learned as we passed along. Most of the voyage had been uneventful. But, nearing this side a lookout had signalled the appearance of a periscope. Soon the deck guns got into action, and two depth charges were dropped over the spot where the periscope was last seen. But there was no further sign of hostile craft. If the depth charges took effect they left no trace for there was no wreckage on the water. Very soon the incident had passed and some of the ships did not even know anything unusual had occurred.

Deadly Depth Bombs. On the upper deck we saw the deadly depth charges and the long toboggan slide along which they are started on their errand. The charges were in metal cylinders the size of a cask, two on each side ready to drop over.

Besides these the gunnery officer was proud of the possession of guns made for use on battleships but mounted here on deck.

"They will out-shoot any submarine," said the officer, patting his big weapons as though they were pets.

In the officer's mess hall one of the officers summed up the results of the trip. Most of the men, he said, were from the west, with a large number of farmer boys who had never been on the water before. This was a great experience, a great adventure, and they were eager for it. There was little sea-sickness after the first few days. The men looked forward anxiously to getting into the fighting front for there was one common impulse running through them all, as shown by their letters home—that there was a big job ahead which had to be done, and they wished to do it and have done with it so as to return home.

As we came ashore two American airplane sections were being debarked, with their liberty motors and all the paraphernalia of flight. These arrivals, long deferred but now coming strong and fast, were almost as cheering as the arrival of troops, and together they signalled that vital part in men and machines that America would soon be taking in the critical stage of the great conflict.

Not a Policeman's Job. Yesterday afternoon a well-dressed woman rushed into the police station and said she wanted a policeman quick. Assistant Chief Butcher accompanied her to the Simpson Building corner before he learned what she wanted. Then she told him her husband was sitting in a picture show beside another woman and she wanted the officer to go and bring him out. The officer said he thought she had better do that herself. She went to the show, but the husband had departed.
